Period for Reply

A SHORTENED STATUTORY PERIOD FOR REPLY IS SET TO EXPIRE 3 MONTH(S) OR THIRTY (30) DAYS, WHICHEVER IS LONGER, FROM THE MAILING DATE OF THIS COMMUNICATION.

- Extensions of time may be available under the provisions of 37 CFR 1.136(a). In no event, however, may a reply be timely filed after SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- If NO period for reply is specified above, the maximum statutory period will apply and will expire SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- Failure to reply within the set or extended period for reply will, by statute, cause the application to become ABANDONED (35 U.S.C. § 133). Any reply received by the Office later than three months after the mailing date of this communication, even if timely filed, may reduce any earned patent term adjustment. See 37 CFR 1.704(b).

Status

- 1) ☒ Responsive to communication(s) filed on 07 March 2006.
- 2a) ☐ This action is FINAL. 2b) ☒ This action is non-final.
- 3) ☐ Since this application is in condition for allowance except for formal matters, prosecution as to the merits is closed in accordance with the practice under Ex parte Quayle, 1935 C.D. 11, 453 O.G. 213.

DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(a) the invention was known or used by others in this country, or patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country, before the invention thereof by the applicant for a patent.

2. Claims 14-32 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(a) as being anticipated by Schuster et al (6,567,399).

Consider claims 14 and 26, Schuster et al teach a subscriber-line circuit for a communication system (col. 4 lines 64-65), comprising: a subscriber-side interface that connects to a subscriber terminal (see Fig. 1, terminals 12-18); a network-side interface that connects to a communication system having a packet network (col. 5 lines 1-8; col. 8 lines 8-16); a plurality of protocol stacks for communicating with a plurality of network elements within the communication system (col. 5 lines 17-35); and a converter that converts information received by the network-side interface from a network-side protocol to a subscriber-side protocol and converts information received by the subscriber-side interface from the subscriber-side protocol to the network-side protocol (col. 5 lines 9-16).

Consider claims 15-17, Schuster et al inherently teach the claimed features since all circuits required to be either manually or dynamically connected to the network in order communication between networks.

Consider claim 18, Schuster et al teach wherein the subscriber terminal is a Time Division Multiplex (TDM) terminal or wherein the subscriber terminal is a Digital Subscriber Line (DSL) terminal (col. 3 lines 43-49; col. 4 lines 66-67).

Consider claim 19, Schuster et al teach wherein the circuit provides for terminating modem connections (Fig. 1, modem 19).

Consider claim 20, Schuster et al teach wherein the subscriber-side communication provides a voice coding transmission of A-law or μ -law (col. 7 lines 56-59).

Consider claims 21-24, Schuster et al teach wherein the subscriber-side interface transmits and receives tones and/or announcements (see background, typical SLIC functionality).

Consider claim 25, Schuster et al teach wherein the network-side interface is an Ethernet interface (see Fig. 2, NIC 170).

Consider claim 27, Schuster et al teach wherein the packet-based network is coupled to a switching center of a circuit-switched telephone network via at least one of the network elements (see Fig. 1 elements (10,22,16)).

Consider claims 28 and 30-31, Schuster et al teach wherein the packet based-network is an access network (col. 4 line 67 – col. 5 line 1).

Consider claims 29, Schuster et al teach wherein a network element is selected from the group consisting of: gatekeeper, proxy server for Voice-over-Internet Protocol (VoIP), access controllers, routers for accessing the packet-based communication network, and authentication devices (see Fig. 1).

Consider claim 32, Schuster et al teach wherein the packet based-network is an internet (col. 5 lines 1-7).

Conclusion

3. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
